WEDNESDAY MORNING OCT 14 1863

California and Oregon Railroad

Mr Elliott, who is superintending the preliminary survey of a route for a railway between the Sacramento valley and some suitable point for a northern terminus in Oregon arrived here on Monday, and informs us that his party are now in Douglas county coming towards the Willamette valley as rapidly as is consistent with a thorough exploration of the route We also learn from him that steps have been taken by some of the most enterprising citizens of Southern Oregon, to effect the organization of a company, in this State, to operate in connection with that which is to be formed in California, for the purpose of securing the favorable action and patronage of Congress, and if obtained, of immediately commencing the building of the road A meeting of stockholders has been called at Jacksonville, to be held on the 7th Nov, for the election of Directors, and the California stockholders will meet at Yreka, on the 9th Nov, for the same purpose, after which, doubtless, both companies will harmoniously co-operate for the accomplishment of the magnificent and most important work, which they take upon themselves

So far as the survey has been completed Mr Elliott is entirely satisfied that the undertaking is practicable, and can be effected at less cost than was originally supposed provided the people along the proposed line manifest the energetic and determined spirit, which is sure to make success In the Southern counties, this appears to exist, and to cause earnest efforts, but in this part of the Willamette valley, we regret that there seems to be so much apathy, and even on the part of some, a disposition to oppose a project, which, in our judgment, will be, when accomplished, of more actual and permanent advantage to Oregon, than any other measure that can be suggested. Especially, do we think that the citizens of Portland, in neglecting to give to it their cordial and earnest support, are blind to their true and vital interests We have no doubt that the road will be built, but it depends upon our action now, whether it shall come to Portland, or strike the Columbia river at some other point The route to Astoria, from Salem, is feasible so, perhaps, is that through Yamhill and Washington counties to St Helens, and the valuable mining regions of Eastern Oregon have directed attention to a line from Klamath Lake down the valley of the Deschutes river, Of course, no plan is yet decided, but it is likely that some one will, before long be fixed upon, and we fear that it is not likely that those having the matter in charge, will be disposed to force a route against a reluctant or indifferent public sentiment Is it not then expedient, if Portland wishes the road to terminate here and does not desire that, through its agency, a rival city should be built up, on the Columbia, that our citizens should, at once, take some action in the matter? It will not do to sit quietly down on the bank of the river, and expect wealth and growth and prosperity to be borne to us on its current In these days, trade builds highways for itself, unless it finds encouragement, and our citizens must, like those of every other city in the land, by means of new and better avenues of communication, draw hither the business of the State and adjacent Territories, or it will go where it finds larger and more liberal inducements and is better accommodated With a railroad running to California, and terminating here, this city will have a future success and greatness, that the present imagination of the most sanguine can scarcely conceive, but if that road goes to any other point, our prosperity will be throttled, and die We can have the road, if we only say so, and use the means to secure it, we shall not have it, if we sit still and expect somebody to bring to us what we do not care enough about to claim and hold by our own power and energy

The people of this valley, not less than of Portland, ought also to feel a deep interest in this project. It is just what they need, and so long as its completion is delayed, they will be compelled to submit to the heavy charges and delays, which the present means of transportation cause Will they not also consider this matter in the light which the experience of other communities sheds upon it? In no respect, scarcely, is Oregon so far behind the other States, as in that of internal improvements and nothing but these is necessary to enable our citizens to develope our vast and immensely valuable resources, every day becoming better known and more justly esteemed Ought we not then, all of us, to manifest a lively interest in every feasible measure, which looks to the opening of the rich stores of wealth now concealed in our mines of gold and silver, of copper and of iron, our coal fields, our farms, and our forests? Is it a wise economy that refuses to assist in carrying forward schemes, which cannot fail to make our section of the State as well as the Southern, rich vigorous and full of healthy prosperity? We beg our citizens, in town and country calmly to think of these things, and we doubt not they will wisely decide as to the course which duty and interest alike demand.

The Wrongs of the Rebels —Suppose a deputation from Jeff Davis to apply to the English Government formally for help against the United States Government and suppose the question of intervention really opened as regards the United States as it is now in the case of Russia! We may imagine Earl Russell requesting the emissaries of Davis to wait upon him, to explain the merits of their case

We will suppose Messrs Mason Slidell and Benjamin seated in the Foreign Office Earl Russell asks them to state their grievances What harm has the Government of the United States done the people you profess to represent gentlemen is of necessity his first question What oppressions have you suffered, which my influence and intercession may remedy What rights have you been deprived of? I am anxious to see justice done between men it is England's magnanimous desire to help the oppressed everywhere I have just appealed to the Emperor of Russia to give to a portion of his subjects those equal rights which were denied them and that impartial justice which they could not get before Explain to me your wrongs as the Poles did and I will cheerfully use my influence with the Government to relieve you and do you justice.

At such an address Messrs Mason Slidell and Benjamin would be a little puzzled no doubt, and we may suppose Earl Russell anxious to relieve an embarrassing silence catechising the embassy of Davis 'You have probably been denied the inestimable rights of free speech and a free press by the oppressive Government of the Union'—'No" Mr Mason would be compelled to answer 'the people of the Northern States have always maintained free discussion it is we who have forbidden and prevented it'

At this reply, the face of the English Earl shows surprise, but he goes on 'Then you have probably suffered restraint in the freedom of religious worship?' 'No' Mr Slidell would have to reply 'the United States Government has never interfered with us in that subject all sects and denominations worship God freely after their own fashion"

'I see it now,' says Lord Russell, 'the North of which you complain, has denied you the right of freedom to take part in the government of your country?' 'No Mr Benjamin would have to say, "on the contrary the leaders of the South have managed the affairs of the Nation for nearly three quarters of the time since the Union was formed'

Lord Russell, puzzled at these unexpected replies, thinks a moment, then suggests 'Perhaps the United States Government has laid upon you unjust and oppressive burdens of taxation?' 'No" replies Mr Mason 'on the contrary the part of the revenue derived from our sparsely settled States has never been equal to the expenditures of the Government within them our part of the postal service has always cost more than it brought into the revenue and our people have scarcely known they had a government, so light were its burdens

"Probably, then, the Government of the United States has seized your sons and forced them into a vast standing army?" "No" replies Mr Slidell; 'we of the South were the first to introduce conscription on the American continent'

'I do not quite understand' mutters the puzzled Earl 'Were you wronged in the last Presidential election? Was Mr Lincoln elected in an unconstitutional manner? Were you deprived of the right to vote against him?' "No, the elections were not tampered with no one attempted to coerce our votes' says Mason, who remembers that he and his fellow slaveholders were the only Americans who ever did prevent a free and fair poll

'No conscription, light and equal taxation, a preponderating share in the Government, free speech, free press, and freedom of worship guaranteed, and a free constitutional election!" muses the British Secretary of Foreign Affairs "why gentlemen, if the Poles had enjoyed but half these rights, privileges and immunities, Europe would have held them mad to rebel, and I should not have listened to their agents a moment What have you then to complain of?"

At this awkward question, we must suppose a few minutes of awkward silence Then Mr Mason replies "The North constantly declares our slave system wrong" "And the English people agree with it," says Earl Russell, but the North was always ready to hear your defense of it, I believe?' 'The North insisted on a protective tariff," says Slidell But Louisiana, your own State, was in favor of protection for her sugar?' suggests Earl Russell, and, 'besides, I noticed that one of the first acts of your Montgomery Congress was to lay an export duty on cotton, which is almost your only article of export"

"We were tired of the Union, and want to set up a government of our own in the South,' at last exclaim the rebel agents, driven into a corner "Ah!' says the British Secretary, "that is another affair, altogether I was led to believe you had gross wrongs to be righted, and I was willing to intercede in your behalf, according to our English habit But you have suffered no wrongs, it appears, and you have plunged your country into war, without a shadow of cause That is another affair, to mediate in your favor would be the act of a fool, and to assist you in any other way would be simply to declare war, without cause, against a friendly Government The public opinion of Europe would not justify such an act I must bid you good morning gentlemen"—N Y Post

Terrible, if True!'—The intelligence published by the irrepressible and still vaulting T Vault has the latest news we don't exactly see the meaning of the last line but that is our fault and not the clear headed writer's

Oregon is soon to be the theater of conscription, when her hardy sons and once free American citizens will be seen marched through our towns manacled to a chain—their destiny to become unwilling soldiers—such has been the case in New York for the past month O American Liberty! thou art eclipsed and visible all over the world

The State of Washoe —Washoe will probably be admitted as a State during the next session of Congress A bill for that purpose passed the Senate at the last session the night before the adjournment, but was fifteen minutes too late in reaching the House, and failed, for want of being on the Speaker's table only that length of time The bill provided that a constitutional convention be called, and the State admitted by proclamation of the President, if the constitution was in his judgment republican in form

Army Contracts in Utah —These were awarded at the following rates Hay 630 tons at $24 per ton; oats 80 000 bushels at $1 per bushel, flour, 2,000 barrels at $13 per bbl beef, 215 000 lbs, at 7½c per lb potatoes 2,000 bushels, at $1 per bu salt 190 bushels at $2 50 per bu; wood, 1,500 cords at $9 75 per cord.

Possibilities of a General European War —According to the telegraph, well informed European politicians look upon a general European war to grow out of the Polish question as almost certain The probabilities of such an event appeared probable to us on the commencement of the Polish rebellion While in reality there is nothing in the present rebellion that should attract sympathy for the Poles engaged there is much in the past history of Poland calculated to awaken the sympathies of the people of Europe for the Polish people in their present struggle In fact it has become a chronic fashion in Europe to expend cheap sympathy on the Poles and cheap condemnation on Russia To follow the fashion is in one sense popular Hence Louis Napoleon has sought to make his dynasty somewhat popular with the people of Europe and blind them to his real purposes by taking an active part in the present disturbance

In this proceeding Napoleon is true to himself, and as usual, false to the interests of humanity Everything else being equal Napoleon or the French would not care a pin if all the Poles in Christendom were consigned to the most abject slavery He now interferes simply for the purpose of weakening and embarrassing a powerful rival nation which once aided in driving a Bonaparte from the soil of France He also hopes by this procedure to win over to his support the influence and sympathies of the Republicans of Europe, that they may keep the peace toward him in Europe while he is engaged in America in crushing out Republicanism and erecting monarchies, and establishing in Mexico a tyranny compared to which the government of Russia in Poland is the acme of human liberty

The rebellion in Poland commenced as ours did in America—in the interests of slavery. The aristocrats of Poland indignant that Russia had set their serfs free and placed them in the way of elevating themselves to the dignity of manhood rebelled Napoleon aids that rebellion for the purpose of weakening Russia and he aids the Southern rebellion to weaken the power of the United States, so he makes common cause with a few Mexican traitors to establish an odious tyranny in Mexico

England Austria and Prussia having taken part in the partition of Poland, cannot now take part against Russia the former will partially side against that power to the extent of vapid protests but the two latter must side with the Muscovite Emperor Russia is not inclined to be snubbed by Napoleon, and is, according to all accounts preparing her forces to chastise his presumption Hostilities once commenced, but a short time will elapse before all Europe will be drawn into the conflict. Italian provinces will revolt against the Pope the Bourbons will again strike for the throne of France, England will fight for self preservation first on one side and then on the other, and between them all they will manage to get up a tolerable counterpart of the conflict now raging on this continent

The influence of such a war on us will be to free us from all dangers of foreign interference and leave Mexican affairs to be settled by Mexicans and Americans, and finally to place the United States and Russia in the front rank of power—to make them the arbiters of the fate of the two continents —S F Bulletin.

A Scrap of History —Rosecrans's letter in reply to the joint resolutions of the General Assembly of Ohio, thanking him, his officers, and his gallant army, for their splendid conduct at Stone river, was one of the most effective patriotic papers of the war It electrified the whole loyal people of the North, and dismayed the enemy in our midst The history of that famous letter may prove interesting It is simple, but worthy of recording

The General had been very ill after the battle, but was convalescent when the resolutions from the General Assembly reached him Not long afterwards, he sat down at a table in his chamber, in Keeble's house, at Murfreesboro—then headquarters—and seizing a stumpy pen and a scrap of paper, began to write vehemently He does everything vigorously Several members of the staff were sitting around the fire one or two—Lieutenant Colonel—then Captain—Gates P Thruston, and Lieutenant—now Major—Frank S. Bond, writing at the same table on which the General was driving his pen

After some ten or fifteen minutes, the General ceased writing, ran his eye over the composition, lifted it from the table, and passed it over to Bond, inviting criticism It was a sort of family affair—as almost everything was at those delightful headquarters—and nobody hesitated to criticise as sharply as they chose Bond's notions were rather more delicate than those of the General and he modestly objected to the phrase 'bully like"—the General's illustration of the arrogant deportment of the rebel authorities Bond thought it infelicitous, especially as it was to go into history It was passed around the room, receiving various comments, chiefly approving, for all discovered its vigor and effectiveness Major Skinner was enthusiastic and praised it lavishly contended earnestly that 'not a word should be changed or modified' The General thought as it had excited so much discussion, that all the 'young men'—the staff—should express an opinion upon it Whereupon Bond retired to the adjacent rooms, Skinner close at his heels, protesting against any change One or two others agreed with Bond that language fully as vigorous and as expressive as bully like' might be substituted, but Skinner clung persistently to his original notion 'It is pure Anglo Saxon, strong, just the thing, will strike the popular sense hard, there's no use dodging it. It's bully.'

The General rather enjoyed the discussion and laughed at it merrily, but when the paper was returned to him, he quietly rang the bell for an orderly and sent it in to the copyist. The original copy was never retouched The letter went to the people directly from the heart of the great soldier of the Army of the Cumberland, and it became a living page in history

Massachusetts at Gettysburg —On every important battle field of the war Massachusetts has testified her devotion to the principles of liberty No State has responded more liberally to every call for men or material, none has accepted with more heroic composure the sacrifices and sorrows which the war has brought none has maintained, amid loss and disaster a firmer faith in the ultimate triumph of the right

The losses sustained by Massachusetts regiments at Gettysburg well illustrate both the gallantry of her troops and the heavy cost this conflict has inflicted upon her In that battle Massachusetts had eighteen regiments and three batteries engaged, numbering some seven thousand men These sustained a total loss of one thousand four hundred and ninety two, or one out of every five Two thirds of the loss was sustained by eight regiments, one of these lost one hundred and twenty seven men out of two hundred and thirty three The mortality of officers was very great eighty six having been killed and wounded, an average of five in each regiment —N Y Evening Post

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN

LATER FROM THE EAST.

Dates to October 7.

Louisville Oct 8—Rumors prevail in Nashville that the rebel cavalry have captured and entirely destroyed Shelbyville Tenn taking our forces there prisoners Truth of the report questionable Gen Mitchell with a large cavalry force was pursuing the rebels, but there is no report that he had got within striking distance A large force is relaying the railroad track recently torn up The rebel cavalry force seem to have disappeared part going north to Kentucky to harass Gen Burnside's communications and part going south against Rosecrans

New York Oct 9—The Herald's Washington dispatch says the latest private dispatches from the south say, it appears that Bragg's army has been reinforced since the battle of Chattanooga by one division from Richmond under Gen Elsey, one from Western Virginia under Sam Jones and one from Petersburg and Weldon under Cutts In addition Bragg has his original army, consisting of Hill's and [Longstreet's?] corps, besides four divisions from Mississippi, one from Charleston one from East Tennessee, seven from Lee's army the Georgia State troops, under Walker, 5 000 cavalry under Pillow, 15 000 cavalry under Wheeler and 1,000 pieces artillery, his whole command amounting to 175 000 men and report says Gen Joe Johnston is at Rome with 35 000 reserves

Fortress Monroe Oct 9 —The Richmond Enquirer has the following

Missionary Ridge, Oct 5 —We opened on Chattanooga at 1 a m, from the top of Lookout Mountain Our shells exploded in the enemy's camp The enemy replied briskly.

Missionary Ridge, Oct 6 —We commenced firing rapidly this morning and swept every lower pontoon bridge and every submerged trestle bridge. No firing on the other side at 11 o'clock

Charleston Oct 6 —An attack was made by us to day on the Ironsides damaging her and frightening the enemy There has been but little firing on the enemy's Morris Island works to day

San Francisco, Oct 9 —The Pirate Chapman case will be submitted to the jury to night

The Government and the War —The leading article in the New York Independent says

A journey to Washington has quickened our faith in the Government Unlike a year ago, the atmosphere of that city now braces hope and courage Men now going there can come away bringing with them an augmented confidence in the great resources of the Government and in the fidelity with which these are applied to the uses of the war. All the blunders, all the tardiness, all the red tape, cannot quench the great fact that the Government has set its heart and soul upon putting down the rebellion and that the rebellion will be put down One cannot talk an hour with the President without feeling that whoever else may doubt the issue of the war Abraham Lincoln doubts not at all Not naturally a sanguine man, he yet believes that he is now shutting his hand upon the prize of victory. When sober minded men feel enthusiasm, and slow going men feel that the end is near, and over cautious men like Lincoln feel confident not only of to day but of to morrow, let the country at large be doubly confident that the crown of triumph is within reach

'Well what next?' said Mrs Partington, as she interrupted Ike who was reading the war news—'The pickets were driven in five miles Bless my poor soul, but that will make a strong fence! I suppose they had to be driven in deep to prevent the secessionaders from digging out under them'

A woman offering to sign a deed, the Judge asked her whether her husband had compelled her to sign? 'He compel me!' said the lady 'no, nor twenty like him!'

Navigation Opening.—Owing to the late rains the upper Willamette river has risen several feet, and we understand that the Captain of the Relief will attempt to make a trip to Salem with the boat.

Target Excursion.—We are informed that Company B, First Regiment Oregon State Militia, (Washington Guards), Capt. Mills commanding, intend going on a target excursion in a few days.

Will Meet To-Night.—This being the regular meeting night of the Board of Common Council, it is to be hoped there will be a quorum present—and that some business, beneficial to the city, will be transacted.

Stuck.—A six-mule team got stuck in the mud on Second street, between Washington and Stark. Unless there is something speedily done, by property holders, in some localities, a few days' more rain will make certain streets almost impassable for teams.

Mrs. Julia Dean Hayne.—We are authorized to state that Mrs. Hayne will appear again at the Theatre in this city on Friday evening. This evening, she will perform at [illegible], the play being "The Hunchback," and also to-morrow night when she will appear as "Camille."

The Santiam Gold Quartz Lead.—Mr. I. Moores, of Salem, furnishes the Statesman with the following description of the route to the new mines:

"A considerable excitement exists throughout the country in regard to the recent discovery of gold-bearing quartz on the Santiam and its tributaries, and as I have lately returned from there, and am familiar with the only practicable route at present to those mines, it has been suggested to me to publish a word of warning to persons contemplating a trip through the mountains at this late season. The trail through the mountains leaves the settlements at or near George Bilyew's, eight miles above Scio, on Thomas's Fork, and with the exception of a few miles, the trail is, in its present condition, a very bad one, no work having been done on it for several years, and the fallen timber and bad trail over high and very steep mountains, makes the route impracticable to ride on horseback, and the entire distance from the settlements—about 45 miles—has to be traveled afoot; and while the route is bad now, a moment's reflection will convince any person that a snow storm—which may now be reasonably expected any day—would increase the difficulty of travel immensely, and at the same time obliterate the trail, and thus leave an inexperienced person exposed to get lost and perish; a party will soon be engaged in opening a trail up the Santiam river, which, when completed, will afford a good winter route to and from the mines, and in the meantime I would advise all persons to wait until the latter trail is opened, as going there now, over the Bilyew trail, incurs the risk of losing their animals and perishing themselves, which the acquisition of no amount of wealth will justify."

The Rebel General Pemberton.—Later intelligence from Southern sources renew the report that Gen. Pemberton has been killed by a Texas soldier, because of his supposed treachery in surrendering Vicksburg. This report may not be true, although it has been reported twice, with an interval of nearly two weeks between; but if Pemberton has fallen by the hands of an assassin, there will be few to lament his fate. He was a Northern man, and deserted the Union without even the excuse which natives of the South might be expected to offer. He was educated at the Military Academy at West Point, fought gallantly in the Mexican war and was promoted to Brevet Major during its course. He resigned and went South in 1861, doubtless to please his wife, who was a southern woman; but as he was made a Major General, and soon afterwards a Lieutenant General by Jeff. Davis, he must have been tampered with by that worthy or some other high functionary of the rebel government. He was distrusted by those for whom he deserted the National flag and despised by loyal men everywhere. They suspected the traitor and did not highly prize his treason, for they did not concede him the possession of any particular military ability and complained persistently of Jeff. Davis for making him a General and reposing confidence in him.

The Oregonian complains that Portland is [illegible] gas light. That's nothing, after you get used to it. We have never had any in Salem.—Statesman.

But if you had had it for two or three years, and found that it was a great and economical convenience, you would be very apt to get mad if you were deprived of it simply to gratify the private spleen of two or three individuals. Especially, if while darkness is supreme during these rainy nights, the same men that stop the gas, allow the streets to be in such a condition that they are absolutely dangerous to every passenger.

Union Mass Meeting at Dallas.—The Union Men of Polk county will hold a Union mass meeting on Saturday, the 31st inst., at Dallas. Gov. Gibbs, Judge Boise, Hon. Geo. H. Williams, and other prominent speakers, will be present to address the meeting.

The amount of taxable property in Linn county this year is $2,075,713; in Albany, [illegible],114. The county commissioners have levied a tax of 12 mills on the dollar, as follows: for State purposes, 3 mills; school, 2; court house, 3; county, 4.

Intervention.—Every few weeks, when the conviction is becoming settled that foreign intervention is impossible, a hue and cry is raised that England or France has resolved to intervene, and some how will-you, nil-you, bring our National struggle to a close. Notwithstanding these rumors the finest clothing is still supplied by the celebrated clothiers Heuston, Hastings & Co., of Montgomery street, corner of Sutter, San Francisco. Their goods are fashionable and durable, and consequently their regular customers are continually increasing.

The Committee of Arrangements for the Entertainment to be given by the Ladies' Oregon Sanitary Aid Society are requested to meet at the residence of Gov. Gibbs, on Thursday, the 15th inst., at 2 o'clock P.M.
Portland, Oct. 13, 1863.

Diarrhœa and Pain in the Bowels Cured.

Carthage, O., Nov. 26, 1853.

Dr. O. R. Baker—Much Esteemed Friend. I have had a severe attack of Diarrhœa, attended with griping pains, and was reduced very low. I tried many different medicines, but all to no purpose, until I got a bottle of your PAIN PANACEA, and commenced its use. The first dose put a quietus on the griping pains, and I had not used two twenty-five cent bottles before I was entirely cured. I also recommended it to a friend, who was attacked with cramp colic, and suffering with excruciating pains, and three doses entirely cured him.

Dyspepsia, or Indigestion.

Springfield, Ohio, July 1, 1853.

Messrs. A. L. Scovill & Co—I have found Dr. MOTT'S LIVER PILLS one of the best medicines for DYSPEPSIA that I ever used. I have been afflicted with the disease for more than six months, and my victuals disturbed my stomach, often to such a degree as to cause vomiting. I was most of the time costive. I found that the Pills kept my bowels open, without griping or pain. I have actually gained, since using them, in weight—being ten pounds heavier than when I commenced. I owe my cure solely to the use of the Pills.

☞ In Every Age of the World, the professions have been slow to admit the value of new discoveries, or the expediency of adopting them in practice. It is not to the legal profession that we look for reforms in jurisprudence, neither do we find the advocates of medical reform among physicians. Each deprecates whatever is found to innovate upon received opinions and established usage. Hence the opposition which medical men too often exhibit to the use of private remedies, whatever their acknowledged value, or great efficiency in the cure of disease. No medicine has ever done more for the relief of human suffering than DR. OSGOOD'S INDIA CHOLAGOGUE. The certainty with which it cures Fever and Ague, and eradicates bile from the system is acknowledged by all. Do you prefer a speedy and effectual cure to a regular and scientific run of disease? Try the Cholagogue, and the object is accomplished. Then tell your suffering neighbor what it has done for you, that it may do the same for him.

Too Slow for Paradise.—Pickering is very nervous little man, who fusses and fidgets about in a remarkably quick manner, and who holds in detestation anything that can possibly come under the head of a slow coach and indulges in rather queer expressions when anything moves too slow for his views. He is blessed with a maid of all work who has caused him to utter more profane words during the past three months than three years in purgatory can atone for. One evening last week he dispatched the girl upon an errand to the neighboring store, and according to his ideas she remained an unreasonably long time. He pulled out his watch and looked a half a dozen times within ten minutes, whistled, drummed upon the table with his fingers, beat time with his foot upon the floor, and finally started up again and began pacing the room as if his nervous agitation and impatience could in any degree accelerate the movements of the absent Abigail. But the girl came at length, and her impatient master broke forth with

"For goodness sake, Maggie, where have you been?"

"To the store sir," was Maggie's reply.

"Well," said her master, "it is about one hundred yards to the store and you have been just fifteen minutes in going and returning."

"Yes, sir," broke in the girl.

"Now, Maggie," continued he, "take my advice, and when you die remain quietly in your grave and never make an attempt to get to heaven."

"And why not, sir?" queried the bewildered girl.

"Because," said Pickering, "the sun is ninety six millions of miles from the earth and heaven is beyond that, and if you ever make an attempt to get there at the rate you move, eternity will come to an end before you reach your destination."

A Canny Scotch Widow Woman.—The clerk of a large parish, not five miles from Bridgenorth, Scotland, perceiving a female crossing a church yard in a widow's garb, with a watering can and bundle, had the curiosity to follow her, and he discovered her to be Mrs Smith, whose husband had not been long interred. The following conversation took place:

"Ah, Mrs. Smith, what are you doing with your watering can?"

"Why, Mr Prince, I have got a few hay seeds, which I have in a bundle, and am going to sow them upon my poor husband's grave, and have brought a little water with me to make them spring."

"You have no occasion to do that as the grass will soon grow upon it," replied the clerk.

"Ah, Mr Prince, that may be—but do you not know my husband, who now lies here made me promise him, on his death bed, I would never marry again till the grass had grown over his grave, and having a good offer made me, I dinna wish to break my word, or be kept as I am."

A Lawyer's Caveat.—Wm H Harding, a lawyer of Lee, Massachusetts, had the misfortune, a short time since of having his marriage published in the Berkshire Eagle. To this he, lawyer like, takes exceptions. In a caveat to the editor he says:

The report of my marriage which I find in your issue of the 27th inst., is not quite correct. First, on the 20th of July, 1863 I kept close company with my law books; second I was never in Lebanon Springs in my life; third, I never, to my knowledge, saw or heard of the Rev. E. T Hunt; fourth, the young lady mentioned as the bride is the wife of my brother; and, fifth, I never was married at all—I never came within gunshot of marriage—I never wanted to get married—and finally, I never expect to get married. With the above slight exceptions your item is perfectly correct.

An Irishman in New Jersey was one Sunday driving a horse with a wagon towards Easton, when he was met by a clergyman, who was going to church, and who took the opportunity to chide the traveler for a breach of the Sabbath.

"My friend," said he, "this is a bad way you are in."

"Och, honey," said the Irishman, "and isn't it the turnpike?"

"Yes," replied the minister, "but what I mean is, that you are in a bad state."

"By me sowl," returned the Irishman, "and that's true enough, too, your worship. It's a very bad State this, and I'll get into Pennsylvania as soon as I can. Gee up, honey."

Mr Toot coming home late one night from "meeting," was met at the door by his wife. "Pretty time of night, Mr Toot, for you to come home—pretty time, three o'clock in the morning, you, a respectable man in the community, and the father of a family!" "'Tisn't three—it's only one, I heard it strike; council always sits till one o'clock." "My soul, Mr Toot, you're drunk—as true as I'm alive, you're drunk. It's three in the morning." "I say, Mrs Toot, it's one. I heard it strike one as I came round the corner, two or three times!"

A certain green customer, who was a stranger to mirrors, and who stepped into the cabin of one of our ocean steamers, stopping in front of a large pier glass, which he took for a door, he said "I say mister, when does the boat start?" Getting no reply from the dumb reflection before him, he again repeated "I say, mister, when does this here boat start?" Incensed at the still silent figure he broke out "Go to thunder, you darned sassafras colored, shock headed bull calf, you don't look as if you knew much anyhow."

Jones and Brown were talking lately of a young clergyman whose preaching they had heard that day. The sermon was like a certain man mentioned in a certain biography, "very poor and very pious."

"What did you think of him?" inquired Brown.

"I think," said Jones, "he did much better two years ago."

"Why, he didn't preach at all then," said Brown.

"True," replied Jones, "that is what I mean."

"Ma," said a five year-old young lady to her mother the other day, "do they make men the same as they do stockings?"

"How absurd you are, Jane,—of course not."

"Then what made you say this morning, ma, that Major Spanker was a remarkably well knit man?"

An English judge being asked what contributed most to success at the bar, replied, "Some succeed by great talent, some by a miracle, but the majority by commencing without a shilling."

A Western paper says that an Arkansas cavalry Colonel mounts men by the following order: First order—Prepare for ter git onto yer creeters. Second order—Git!

An Irishman having a crooked cane of a rather peculiar shape, being asked "what he called that," replied "This is what I call an incorruptible Justice of the Peace!"

Henry Ward Beecher.—At the opening of a new Baptist Chapel lately in Brooklyn, of which Spurgeon's brother is to be the pastor, the Rev H W Beecher of New York made a speech in which occurred the following amusing passage. "It does me good to hear my brother young in years and I presume in the ministry, speak as he did of the work to which he was giving himself. It brought back my own early days. I began my ministry in a church in the wilderness where there were nineteen women and one man, and I wished him out more times than one. [Laughter.] They were the saints and he was the sinner. [Renewed laughter.] I was at that time sexton and general undertaker for the church. I swept it, I bought the lamps and lit them. I would have rung the bell but there was none. [Laughter and applause.] I did the preaching, was Superintendent of the Sabbath School, and did everything else that was to do, and though many years have passed and I have seen other scenes I have never had happier hours since. [Cheers.]"
